RE: JANE GIBSON

I interviewed Professor L.W. Kimbell of Rutgers College. Kimbell resides on the Hamilton Road about a half mile beyond De Russey's Lane.

He informed me that he has lived out that way about six years and has known Mrs. Gibson as being a farmer in his neighborhood. He claims that he has only spoken to her about four times and then only with reference to some of her stock which had strayed over onto his place. On one occasion he went to her farm to notify her about one of her horses which was roaming about. He said that in his conversation with her he had found her courteous. I questioned him as to Mrs. Gibson's reputation. He said he had heard some gossip since the murder, but he had never had any dealings with her of such a nature as to cause him to form an opinion of her.

I also questioned him about the Phillips Farm. He claimed he had never known of it until the finding of the bodies and has heard nothing as to what use might have been made of the farm house.

Respectfully yours,

David Thompson
